PROJECT SOCIAL CARTOGRAPHY AND TECHNICAL TRAINING OF RESEARCHERS AND SOCIAL MOVEMENTS IN KENYA AND BRAZIL

This Project facilitates scientific exchange between universities in Kenya and Brazil, as well as between the social movements in these countries, considering their different socio-political contexts. Some of the main objectives of this initiative include: facilitating training in social mapping techniques for the production of booklets containing interviews with members of traditional peoples and communities – their essential knowledge, experiences and views about such social situations; exchange experiences between both countries in respect to territorial rights and rights to natural resources; as well as developing comparative analysis about the pertaining legal frameworks in both Kenya and Brazil.
